The Ephebic Oath

We men and women graduating from The City College of New York, do this day, after the manner of the Athenian youths of old about to enter public life take this oath of devotion to the City of New York:

we will never bring disgrace to our city by any act of dishonesty or cowardice nor ever desert
our suffering comrades in the ranks;

we will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many;

we will revere and obey the city's laws, and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those about us who are prone to annul them and set them at naught;

we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty;
and thus,
in all these ways,
we will strive to transmit this city not only not less,
but greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us.

MEMORIES OF CCNY: “My best memories actually began in my junior year of high school believe it or not. I was already enrolled in College Bound classes since my freshman year. Then one morning my classmates and I were invited to the school’s guidance office and told about a program that would allow us to receive up to 4 college credits toward our upcoming college years. Our parents were to pay a particular amount and the college the balance. We were able to choose the class that we wanted to take in the evenings. I jumped at the chance and so did my parents who had always said, "There is nothing better in this world than a full education." That was the first time that I stepped on the campus of CCNY with other real college students. I completed the class, passed the class, and received 4 credits. At the end of that class I knew right away college was for me and City College was going to be the place to be."
Kim Yancey-Moore, BFA was a theater major and wrote for The Paper. She graduated cum laude. Kim is now a professional actress. She has performed in Off Broadway shows in NYC, in regional theater across the country, and has appeared on television in "Law and Order," "Spin City," and "All My Children."
